Dehradun

AT A GLANCE

Dehradun the Capital of Uttarakhand is one of the most beautiful resort in the submountain tracts of India, known for its salubrious climate and scenic surroundings. Doon, aside often called, has been a favourite setting ground of the elite for nearly two centuries though its history stretches back to many a millennia. The name Dehradun appears to be a collection of two words "dera" a camping ground. The Dronacharya the common Guru of the Pandavas and Kaurava of the Mahabharat and the illustrious son of goddess Ganga, set up an ashram here, near the village of Dwara to perform his devotions at a lonely spot. The place came to be known as Dron Ashram, which eventually became Dun.

Earliest tangible evidence of the history of Dehradun is glimpsed from a rock inscription of Emperor. Ashok, 3rd century, BC, that was discovered in 1860 AD by a Britisher, Mr. Forrest, near Kalsi. The region then formed part of the Emperor's domain. After disappearing from history, perhaps, because it was deserted, it re-emerges in the territory of the Katyuri dynasty of Grahwal. In late 18th century it was conquered by the Gorkhas of Ran Bahadur of Nepal, who were replaced by the British in 1815 AD. Under the British, Dehradun became an elite town with many a fine institutions like Forest Research Institute, Doon and Welham School, ONGC and Wdia Institute of Himalayan Geology, were added in time. Dehradun has now become an important tourist destination, too for its surroundings offer an interest to the visitor.

Past : Dehradun is one of the oldest cities in India. In the Vedic times, the Garhwal Mandal, of which Dehradun is a part, was known as the kedar Khand. Legend has it that Guru Dronacharya, a Brahmin teacher of warfare, considered Dehradun a place fit for meditation and worship and therefore, the valley of Doon as christened Dron Ashram, Which means "The Abode of Drona".

The written history of Dehradun dates back to 250 BC and King Ashoka's inscription at Kalsi, on the outskirts of the city, is proof of this. There are 14 edicts carved on a rock and nearby is the site of three horse sacrifices by Raja Shilvarma of the Vrisher dynasty. Large bricks with writing on them are laid out in the shape of a huge bird with a fire alter in the middle.

Th sikh saint Guru Ram Rai also camped here at the place where the present Guru Ram Rai Darbar is located. Like most other Indian hill stations, the British found the climate and the serene environment of this place closer to their home and established many well-known institutions.
